YEAR TO WORKHOUSE FOR RUM-RUNNER

Hymen Levine of Pittsburgh Is Sentenced By Judge Erwin Cummins On Plea of Guilty to Transporting Moonshine

Hymen Levine of Pittsburgh entered a plea of guilty to unlawful transportation of liquor—booze that was intoxicating—before Judge Erwin Cummins yesterday afternoon in court at Washington, and was sentenced to pay the costs, a fine of $1,00 and to serve eleven monthh and 25 days in the Allegheny County workhouse.

He was arrested by state police in North Strabane township in a car in which he was hauling 60 gallons of moonshine. If he pays the fine and costs he will get off with six months to the works.

Walter Markow, a blind man, who has a small store in Griffith avenue, Canton township, entered a plea of guilty to sales of jamaica ginger. He was paroled with the understanding that he must cease all sales of "jakie." He had been warned by the officers several times but, it is alleged he persisted in continuing the sales. Judge Cummins told him that if he were ever brought in again he would be punished and he promised to obey the law to the letter. Markow, a young man is totally blind and has a family of five small children.

Joseph Kurjak, a miner at the Lincoln Hill mine, for violation of the mining law, was given a fine of $1 and costs. It seems that he was found with matches in his working clothes. He said that he had overlooked them and had no intention of taking them into the mine. He has a large family of children and is only working part time just now.

Clifford Jenkins, colored, of Pittsburgh, for whom a bench warrant was issued, was brought into court yesterday afternoon and placed on trial before Judge Cummins, on a charge of felonious assault and battery. It appears that Jenkins was engaged to marry Lucile Clark of Allenport, when he had osme trouble with her brother, Rufus Clark. The latter objected to Jenkins' attentions to his sister and it is alleged that on April 20, last, Jenkins shot and wounded Clark in the leg.

The case went to the jury at adjournment of court.

Joe Ligosky of the Tylerdale section, entered a plea of guilty to a charge of driving an autamobile while intoxicated He is employed at Arden mines and it seems that while Constable W. F. Core was returning to Burgettstown he found Ligosny in his machine intoxicated. He placed him under arrest. He was sentenced to pay the costs, a fine of $200 and to spend two months in the county jail.

Joe Sulosky of Bulger, who was driving a machine that collided with the car of D C. Ewing in Smith township, also entered a plea of guilty to a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated. He was sentenced to pay the costs, a fine of $200 and to 30 days in the county jail.

Paul Dixon of McDonald, for the same offense in which his $1,400 Buick car was wrecked, was fined $200 and given 15 days to jail. He was prosecuted by Constable W. F. Core, Burgettstown.

Martin Simunda of Canton township, was sentenced to five months in the workhouse in addition to a fine of $300 and the costs on his plea of guilty to a charge of the manufacture and possession of liquor. His sentence will be reduced to three

WOMAN SAILS FREIGHTER ON PACIFIC LINES

Portland, Ore., Aug. 27—The big freighter Atlantic of the Pan Pacific line, is somewhere on the Pacific ocean with a woman at the helm—for part of the time, at least.

Miss Helen Olsen, comely, 20-year-old daughter of Captain O. Olsen, skipper of the big steamer, is a seaman on board the vessel, and at times takes the wheel with the other quartermasters.

She is on the ship's payroll, too and therefore is a full-fledged seaman in the eyes of the United States.

"Commodore" Montgomery, veteran shipping commissioner who has grown old in the service at the customs house here declared firmly "hat "nar ya woman" had ever before signed on as a sailor in his experience.

The pretty young mariner will sail with the vessel from here to west coast ports of South American and return to Portland via New York.

"I'd like to be a captain some day, just like my daddy," she said, when asked whether she thought she would like the trip.

"I'd never be anybody's stenographer when I can get a job like this."

Accident Caused By Driver Being Drunk

William Rollason of McKeesport, who, it is alleged, was drunk while driving a large touring car in a reckless manner on the Hanging boulevard, near the Mongah mine, Sunday evening, was taken to Braddock yesterday morning by Constable Andrew Ketnik of Monongahela for a hearing before Alderman Collins.

Rollason's car ploughed into a machine owned by Andrew Nagle, of Braddock, while the latter was parked along the road near the mine making tire repairs. Nagle, with his wife, his daughter, Mrs. Flora Eckles, and Mrs Mary Williams, all of Braddock, were injured. Mrs. Eckles was seriously hurt and was removed in a Monongahela ambulance, to a Braddock hospital, where her condition is reported as serious. She was injured internally. James Davies, who was a passenger in Rollason's car, was found lying unconscious along the road by police when they arrived on the scene. Davis suffered a terrible gash across his forehead from broken glass, which severed two arteries Davies' condition was critical owing to loss of a great amount of blood. He may recover.

The information against Rollason was made by Andrew Nagle.

Belle Vernon Resident Takes Drop of Seventy Feet Over 300-Foot Precipice Tuesday Afternoon —Suffers Broken Arm and Severe Bodily Injuries

Plunging down the almost straight drop of 300 feet of the steep hill overlooking Coal Center, Robert L. Leadbeter, aged about 60 years, of Belle Vernon, and recently of Monessen, [illegible] of this section of the Monongahela valley, miraculously escaped death last evening at 5 o'clock when the Nash touring car he was driving crashed down the steep embankment, just outside of Coal Center on the Coal Center-Speers road.

Helpless and suffering intensely from his injuries, which included a broken right arm, and many lacerations and bruises, Mr Leadbeter, who was hidden from the view of travelers along the highway, yelled for almost half an hour before he finally attracted anyone to come to his assistance.

The man was taken to California in an ambulance and there placed on a train which took him to the West Penn hospital, Pittsburgh, for treatment.

Mr Leadbeter was returning home from a bank meeting at California, and was taking the shorter route home, the Coal Center-Speers road. As he was driving up the steep hill, just outside of Coal Center, Mr. Leadbeter evidently drove too near the edge of the country road, and a portion of the highway gave way under the weight of the machine, causing the car to topple over the side of the cliff The machine turned over three times in a plunge of 70 feet and crashed against a tree, which stopped its further journey. The car was practically demolished.

Mr. Leadbeter was thrown from the machine as it collided against the tree.

The injured man was for a number of years affiliated with the undertaking establishment of Hines & Leadbeter of Coal Center, but for the past few years has been living a retired life

Preacher Wins Prizes For Best Flowers

Rev. Henry Madtes of Short street, Belle Vernon, who is pastor of the First Baptist church of that place, has returned from the city of New York, where he was present at a show held by the American Gladiolh association, held in connection with the New York Horticultural Society. The exhibit was held in the American Museum of Natural History. The Belle Vernon divine brought home with him four prizes. He won three prizes for the most perfect flower of the yellow variety, and one prize for a bouquet of 24 various assortments.

Rev. Madtes attended the Gladiolh show at Rochester, N. Y., last year, and captured three of the prizes awarded. He takes a keen pride in flowers, and his garden is a bower of beauty—the wonder and comment of all beholders The divine is in receipt of numerous congratulations, account of his success in, and interest taken as a horticulturist

LOCAL BODY IS ANXIOUS FOR ROAD

Chamber of Commerce And Others Hope Fallowfield Supervisors Will Unite With Commissioners In Improvement of Highway

A DISTANCE OF 1200 FEET

Begins At Lover Store And Extends to Top of Hill — Commissioners Agree to Improvement On a 50-50 Basis, If the Township Will Go Along

If the members of the board of supervisors of Fallowfield township will co-operate with the County Commissioners to build 1200 feet of improved road in Fallowfield township on the 50-50 basis a new and direct route to the National Pike will be available to the people of this end of the county.

The road in question is a portion of what is known as the Lover road and is a section beginning at the Lover store and extending to the top of the hill This 1200 feet is the only remaining portion of the highway that is not improved The county and West Pike Run township this summer awarded a contract for the improvement of a portion of this route and the contractor has finished his work and the road will be thrown open in a short time.

Every available effort is being put forth by members of the Charleroi Chamber of Commerce and other interested citizens to have the supervisors agree to build the road. A meeting was held last night at the office of the Chamber of Commerce with members of the Board of Supervisors present, but nothing definite was accomplished. The County Commissioners have signified their willingness to build this road on the 50-50 basis if the township will agree to go along. but up to now, the Fallowfield township officials do not seem very much interested.

Secretary Heffran is trying to arrange a meeting between the Fallowfield township supervisors and the County Commissioners, at which time it is hoped that an agreement to build this important connecting link will be reached.

FORMER MONESSEN PASTOR DIES AT FARRELL, PA.

Rev. Paul Ruttkay, 52 years old, of Farrell, a suburb of Sharon, who for a period of 13 years was pastor of St. Mary's Greek Catholic church of Monessen, died at his late home yesterday.

Although Rev. Ruttkay has been ailing for some time, he was only stricken seriously ill several days ago and the news of his death is received with great regret He was very well-known and highly respected throughout this vicinity, only moving to Farrell about a year ago

When news of his death reached Monessen, a number of his most devoted friends formed a committee in an effort to pursuade the parishioners at Farrell to allow the body to be brought to Monessen for burial and strengthened their request with the offer of paying all expenses, but their efforts proved futile.

Funeral services will take place Friday. Rev. Ruttkay is survived by his widow and four children.

St. Jerome Children To be Given Outing At Oakland Park

The children of St. Jerome's Roman Catholic church will tomorrow have one of the greateht times of their lives when the members of the C. D of A and the K. of C, are tendering them the annual outing, to be held at Oakland park. The children will have free tranhportation and ice cream will be served them at the park.

The outing, however, is not for the children alone, and the members of the organizations want all the parents and members of the church to pack a basket and join in the fun.

The children are to meet at the church not later than 10.30 o'clock, in order that they may all be on hand to board the 11 o'clock special street cars that will leave the corner of Fallowfield avenue and Seventh street.

Mrs. Margaret O'Brien and Mrs. John Henrion are in charge of the sports, and not only a large program has been arranged but a varied and large assortment of prizes have been purchased and donated for the winners

Arrangements have been made for a large crowd. Go, and make the affair one of the most succesful that has ever been held.

Romance Of Old Couple Broken; Again In The Almshouse

Jeannette, Pa, August 27—For a little more than a year, Jacob Craven and his bride had their fling of happiness. Craven is 75 and his bride 84, and they eloped from the Westmoreland County almshouse on June 5, last year.

But their romance is now over and they were returned to the almshouse where they must live in separate wards, as couples are not permitted in each other's society there.

Jacob brought his bride to Jeannette and installed her in a shack They had no means of support For a while the community supported them, but soon grew tired and charity was appealed to. A job was found for Jacob running an elevator, but he did not take kindly to the idea

The little old woman's relatives offered to take care of her, but they drew the line at giving Jacob a home, and the old man's sons made the same sort of proposition.

The old sweethearts refused to be separated, but finally a constable set them in an alley for non-payment of rent and the community saw the last of them when they were taken back to the almshouse.

ENJOY OUTING AT KENNYWOOD

Belle Vernon firemen are holding a picnic under fair skies at Kennywood park today. The attendance is large, and the concourse will doubtless enjoy their outing as only a Kennywood Park outing can be enjoyed.

For several weeks committees were busy completing plans and making arrangements for the picnic, and the merchants of the town heartily cooperated with them.

One of the main features is the sports' program, in which $500 [illegible] prizes will be given away; as also the ownership of a big Studebaker Sedan. The services of two expert coffee makers were secured and the beverage will be dispensed free of charge.

The outing promises to be one of the most successful ever held by any Belle Vernon society at the noted park named.

OFFICER FIRED ON; KILLS ASSAILANT

Mauch Chunk, Pa., August 27— Charles Sitler, 19-year-old-son of a prominent local attorney and student of the Lehigh University was shot and fatally wounded here early today by Patrolman Frank McGinley.

Officer McGinley was patrolling his beat along Broadway when he heard someone at the entrance to the Britton & Hayes store. He shouted, and someone shot at him. Drawing his gun the officer started for the alley-way, when a dark figure ran out across the Library grounds and shot at him again. The officer gave chase and two more shots were fired at him before he finally shot at the fleeing figure and it fell.

McKinley carried the body to a hotel near-by, where identity was made and the doctor sent for. The boy died in the hospital shortly after 10 a. m. Tools used by burglars were found around the entrance of the store.

P. H. C. FOLK IN A PICNIC

Four large busses, conveying more than 100 members of the Protected Home Circle from this vicinity, left at 8:30 o'clock this morning to enjoy their annual outing being held at Shady Grove Park, near Uniontown, where special arrangements have been made for their entertainment.

The P. H. C. annual outings have always been the outstanding features in the line of entertainment of the year, and from all indications this one promises to out-do all the others. Various sports will be indulged in with the usual picnic dinner and supper playing an important part in the day's program.

PITTSBURGH SCENE OF VETS' REUNION

DOGS BITE 88 IN SEVEN MONTHS

Eighty-eight persons in Pennsylvania were bitten by dogs infected with rabies during the first seven months of the year, according to a [illegible] Industry, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. This is 46 more persons than were bitten during the same period last year.

No deaths resulted among the people bitten. In the majority of cases, the Pasteur treatment was used to save the unfortunate victims.

Pittsburgh, August 27. — 15,000 veterans of the 80th Division opened their fourth annual reunion here today in the Moose temple. The climax of the program will be reached at a picnic at Westview park Saturday.

A memorial service for their war dead will be held Sunday.

Fillingham May be Seen Today at Old Place on Second

Joe Fillingham, who has been in Oklahomt since the early spring playing with the Tulsa, Oklahoma, club of the State League of the state named, is home, and may appear at his old position today in the game with the Beaver Falls Elks. Joe has been covering outfield with great success in the southland, but was injured recently and came home to recuperate.

Manager Mathers said yesterday he was not certain that Joe could play this evening, but that if it is at all possible, he will be injected into the lineup, with Yengst doing shortstute duty. This boy Yengst has covered the bag splendidly since being signed by the Charleroi management, but he lacks experience. Joe Fillingham is a seasoned player and besides, his many friends will want to see him in action again.

The contest tonight is called promptly for 5:30 o'clock, and will begin promptly on time as the days are getting shorter and if an extra inning affair should be necessary for a decision, 5:30 is even a little late to start.

"Bombs" From Trees

Coulter's pine, one of the largest trees that grows in California, emulates the military airplane in its method of distributing seed. This giant fir produces enormous cones in which are attached the seeds. The seeds are held securely as long as the fruit is not checked in its flight through the air. Should the fruit as very often happens, be blown against an obstacle, such as a tree-branch, the device which holds the seed unclasps and its burden falls to the earth. The whole idea closely resembles one of the worst features of aerial war, although instead of a devastating bomb the flying fruit drops a seed that may grow up into a useful tree.

Ocean Temperature

The surface water of the ocean varies in temperature with the latitude. The hottest water, about 80 degrees, is at the equator, and the coldest at the poles. At a depth of 700 feet, however, the ocean, even in the tropics, is extremely cold. This icy water has drifted down from the poles spreading its chilling effect over the entire sea. In the lowest depths the temperature is very close to the freezing point. There is no danger that the ocean will ever freeze, because the water is in perpetual motion through waves, tides and currents, and also because the warm water at the equator keeps the general temperature from dropping too low.

"Curfew" in America

There are no states in the Union where the curfew as it was known in the early days is enforced. Formerly the curfew was sounded as a signal for all fires and lights to be put out. This was because heat was obtained from open fireplaces, and the measure was regarded as necessary for the safety of the community in order to prevent fires. According to Bouvier's dictionary, some states have enacted legislation in regard to the curfew, but it is used generally as a convenient method of letting the inhabitants know what time of night it is.

THE BULL DOGS ARE BEATEN BY SLUGGERS

The Sluggers defeated the strong Bull Dogs at the Pines this morning at 10 o'clock in an exciting game of football. Each member of the team showed remarkable advancement since the last struggle and no doubt will make a strong team in the near future. The best tacklers for the winning team were John and Gus Brickner, while Edgar Lessman and "Bill" Brickner played well for the losers. The Sluggers are making arrangements to meet Rinkydinks some time soon.

Toad-Stone

The toad-stone is generally described as a species of black pebble of no especial beauty as an ornament. During the Dark ages however it was in great demand. It was supposed to protect children from the molestation of fairies and to cure kidney and stomach troubles.

That a common toad bears a precious jewel in its head was a profound belief in the Middle Ages. Its possessor was supposed to be immune from toothache, so the legend runs, and it was a sure antidote for poisons. These creatures were said to forewarn against venom by transmitting a smarting sensation to the flesh. The toad was credited with having a natural fear and antipathy for man as well as for all venomous reptiles, hence its

The Word "Jovial"

The word "jovial" conceals the name of Jupiter, or Jove. A "jovial" person is theoretically, at least, a person born under the influence of the planet Jupiter, or Jove.

This planet was supposed to be the most joyful of all the planets to be born under, just as Saturn is the least joyful.

Gradually the word "jovial" became dissociated from the astrological significance and was generally applied to persons who indicated the quality of joyfulness ascribed to birth under a joyful planet.

Thus many a word in the English language, in common use, traces its origin to mystic beginnings and beliefs in the darkness of past ages.—Birmingham Age Herald.

Birds as Prophets

In early days superstitious people paid considerable attention to the birds and their different cries which were believed to foretell events. Thus comes the old saying: "A little bird told me." Traces of this belief are to be found in our own Old Testament where verse 20 of chapter 10 of Ecclesiastes speaks of "for a bird of the air shall carry the voice and that which hath wings shall tell the matter." It is generally agreed that it is from this belief in the universal knowledge of birds, which, of course we supposed to see everything from the sky—that we get this saying

PITTSBURGH DIVIDES A DOUBLE-HEADER WITH PHILADELPHIA

After flopping the Phils 5 to 1, in the first part of yesterday's doubleheader on Forbes Field, the Pirates beat themselves 3 to 1 in the second encounter, while the Giants gained a verdict over the Cubs in Chicago, all of which spreads the gap between Bill McKechnie's runners-up and the league leaders to four games.

One of the features of the twin engagement was the reappearance of Babe Adams on the mound in the final round of the last affair. He was sent into the arena after an emergency slugger had made a change in pitchers necessary. The veteran star's salary wing withstood the test in great shape. He did not permit a batter to get his toes within a mile of Babe's sore arm must have mended nicely, judging from his excellent showing, and the fans gave him a wild greeting when he walked upon the hill, had three foemen low within a twinkling and then modestly strode to his seat in the dugout.

The last of the two pastimes on the Oakland pasture was finished under protest. Skipper McKechnie claiming with good grounds that the umpires had not lived up to the rules of baseball when they refused to permit Johnny Morrison to complete the circuit on a drive which actually took the pill out of the playing field. The Pirate pitcher was ordered to remain on third base, thus receiving credit for a three bagger when he really was entitled to a home run.

Game Wardens Face 78 Below on Alaska Trip

Anchorage, Alaska—Frank Dufresne, fur warden at Nome, and his trail assistant, Pat Delezene, a noted northern dog musher, encountered some of the coldest weather known in the territory during a trip last winter to the north of the Arctic circle.

For ten days at one stretch the mercury registered from 62 to 78 degrees below zero, according to Dufresne.

"An interesting fact," said Dufresne, "is that when the thermometer registers 60 degrees below or colder, animal life ceases to move and burrows into the snow, remaining there until the weather warms up.

GOLFERS OF THE VALLEY ARE QUITE ACTIVE

Today is the last day of the 54-hole qualifying rounds for the semi-finals in the club championship. The 1924 match play started yesterday in which the 32 lowest handicap men will compete including J. S. Skelly, W. J. Goggins, A. J. White, E. X. Ely, W. E. McCracken, J. E. Burke, Tom Robinson, H. A. McDermott, F. R. Colvin, D. M. McCloskey, C. E. Gibson, Glen Baker, J. H. Neuhart, A. B. Bussman, A. L. McVicker, Adrian Ferrier, Harold Taylor, S. E. Borworth, D. W. Stinson, J. M. Schumm, H. E. Gallatin, C. L. Foreman, W. P. Taylor, H. O Colgan, George Gordon, J. B. Clark, F. K Nelson, W. H. Watson, J. A. Allen, J. T. Henlon, C. E. Towner, O. G. Frazier.

The semi-finals for the junior championship were played this week leaving "Fuzzy" Boyer, of Monongahela, and William Morgan of Monessen, who will play the final match for the silver cup on Labor Day morning.

The Saturday afternoon handicap was won by S. E. Bosworth, first A. L. McVicker, second, Carl Forkum, third; F. C. Colvin, fourth, A. G. Bussman, fifth, J. H. Neuhart, sixth; J. S. Skelly, seventh, J. B. Clark, eighth.

Harold Taylor, who recently established the course record, won the challenge cup with a score of 81. One of the best programs ever prepared will be offered on Labor Day at the club this year when practically every golfing member of the club will take part. On Wednesday the Monongahela club will go to Pleasant Valley to play a return match. About 50 members will make the trip.

SHOULD NOTIFY OF CHANGE IN AN ADDRESS

Secretary Paul D. Wright, of the Pennsylvania Highway department, has made a request, viz:

First—That all holders of automobile licenses (not drivers' licenses), who have changed their residence since they have received their 1924 license plates, notify the Automobile division of the State Highway department of such change of address. Beginning in September the Division will mail to each car owner his application for 1925 tags. This will bear all necessary information concerning his car. It is only necessary that he sign his name, attach a check or money order and return to the offices at Harrisburg. But unless the owner notifies the Automobile division that his address has been changed, he will not receive the 1925 application—because it will go to the old address. Failure to send notification of a change in address, will result in inconvenience to the operator, but it will be solely his fault. Persons who wish to use the Division's special blank relating to change in address, should write to Harrisburg for Form No. 1122.

Little of This Drug Will Go a Long Way

Baltimore, Md.—A dose of such tremendous power that it is used in a ratio of one part to 18,750,000,000 of solution has been produced by Dr. John J. Abel, professor of pharmacology at the medical school of Johns Hopkins university, it is announced.

It is a tartrate compound extracted from the pituitary gland of cattle and is used in obstetrics and is a specific for diabetes insipidus. One ounce of this tartrate, it is said, would turn all the water in a one-foot pipe line running from New York to San Francisco, into pituitary extract.

The pituitary gland lies in a bony cavity at the base of the brain and controls functions of growth. Its disorders are regarded as the cause of such human abnormalities as those of the circus giants. Doctor Abel is endeavoring to isolate the absolutely pure principle of the pituitary organ so that its effects can be studied with exactness. He was the first to do this, according to the university, in the case of epinephrine (adrenalin), the product of the adrenal glands.

HUDDLED IN A MONOPLANE FOR FOUR DAYS

Aboard the U. S. S. Richmond, August 26—For four days Lieutenant Locatelli, Italian airmen and his three flying companions huddled in the shell of their huge metal monoplane, unaware of American cruisers nearby and waiting for rescuers to take them out of the storm-tossed Arctic waters.

Locatelli and his aides, Lieutenant Tullio Crosio, Bruno Falcinelli and Giovanni Braccini today are aboard the Richmond—saved late Sunday night when green rockets sent up from the plane were seen by the crew of the Richmond—and are enroute to Labrador.

Locatelli was forced down last Thursday just in front of the American cruiser Raleigh. The four men could plainly see the cruiser but owing to a heavy fog the crew aboard the Raleigh could not see the mishap of the flying plane.

The monoplane was a plaything of the waves but the four men refused to give up hope of ultimate rescue.

men would crawl through the manhole out onto the swaying water-soaked wings, scanning the empty seas. Once, unknown to them, the Richmond passed just out of their vision, obscured by fog and rain.

From time to time the aviators sent up green rockets and one of these late Sunday night attracted attention of the crew aboard the Richmond. A red rocket was sent up from the ship and an answering flare came back from the plane.

Lieutenant Mareschelli, pilot who accompanied Locatelli part of the distance was on the deck of the Richmond when the flares from the stranded monoplane were seen. He dropped to his knees, half sobbing, and half praying, murmuring the name of "Locatelli."

The Richmond trained powerful searchlights on the monoplane and Lieutenant Locatelli could be seen standing on bow of the tossing yellow monoplane. The Italian national colors were on the tail of the flying vessel.

Locatelli started shouting, using the famous Fascisti cry:

All ala.'

The sailors tossed a line to the crew of the plane and dragged it beside the Richmond. It was battered against the ship and for a time the four Italians were in danger. They stripped the plane of instruments and clothing, punctured the gasoline tank and boarded the Richmond.

Sailors ignited the machine and cast it adrift. Flames lapped the fuselage and the glare lighted the dark freezing night.

DAILY MASSES TO NUMBER HUNDREDS

Washington, Aug. 27—Hundreds of masses will be said daily in the crypt of the national shrine of the Immaculate Conception and at other religious institutions at the Catholic University, during the Holy Name Society convention, September 18 to 21.

Six hundred visiting priests and higher dignitaries of the church are to be housed at the university during the conclave, and all chapels and churches of the vicinity are to be used for the daily masses of each clergyman.

Workmen are concentrating on completion of the crypt, deserting the main part of the shrine until after the gathering. Within the next few weeks a number of altars will be erected, so that several masses may be said simultaneously beginning in the early hours of the morning.

The large chapel of Caldwell Hall, principal structure of the university, will be utilized and several religious study houses in the neighborhood of the university are to be open for this purpose.

"How Does That 'One-Shot' Lubrication System Work?"

IT is not strange that owners of the 1925 Cleveland Six are being actually stopped on the street.

The fame of the "One-Shot" Lubrication System is spreading with wildfire speed—

—for this exclusive feature of the 1925 Cleveland Six does away with the grimy task of greasing the car by hand.

Simply by stepping on a plunger, you lubricate all moving chassis parts.

Whenever a squeak develops—down goes the plunger and the squeak is silenced. No more neglected chassis lubrication with its rattles and repair bills. No more leaving the car for half a day to have it properly greased. You should see this marvelous feature. And you yourself should test the

Mileage Motor

This new and larger power plant ranks the 1925 Cleveland Six among the finest performers of the day. Its hill climbing power, its flashing acceleration, and its better-than-60-miles-an-hour speed will literally amaze you.

Balloon Tires

Nor does any car ride with such flawless comfort—thanks to a longer wheel base, scientifically set springs, and the super-size balloon tires with which all models come equipped. Four-wheel brakes are optional at a slight extra cost.

Don't wait to have your neighbor tell you how superb this new car is. Get behind the wheel yourself—and get a thrill.

MAGIC TRICKS MADE EASY BY WHITTLER

Clever Entertainer With Punch and Judy.

Philadelphia.—Have you ever wondered who makes the Punch and Judy figures you see on the stage? Did you ever stop to think of the man who makes the magician's trick box, his false bottom trunk, or the plug hat out of which he pulls a plant in full bloom? If you took the trouble to investigate these things you would find that the trail of many a magician's success leads to the home of Eli Hackman on West Queen lane, Philadelphia. If you should pursue the matter still further, you would get the story of this man who has developed his hobby into a profitable business.

Mr. Hackman's vocation is prosaic enough. He is the building superintendent of the Spring Garden station and office building of the Reading system. When he is not railroading, however, he is pursuing his avocation of making Punch and Judy figures and other magician's devices. Though his avocation is paying him handsome dividends, he refuses to consider it a business, and always refers to it as his hobby.

Spent Hours Whittling.

Like most other boys, Mr. Hackman spent many hours whittling in his childhood home in Carlisle, Pa. Especially favorable opportunities were presented for the development of this bent, as his father was a wagonmaker and his son had access to his woodworking plant. Before he ventured to work with a jackknife and a piece of wood, Mr. Hackman entered the field of manufacturing Punch and Judy figures by experimenting on his mother's sewing machine and stuffing his rag creations with sawdust. Then he tried carving the figures out of wood. He worked at it only spasmodically, however, and up to the time when he moved his family to Philadelphia in 1900 he had only a few figures on hand.

About this time the attention of several ventriloquists was attracted to his work. Having had great difficulty in obtaining satisfactory figures from any other source, they asked the erstwhile boy whittler to make several sets for them. He undertook the work, delivering the figures and ever since has been turning them out for ventriloquists in all parts of the country. One thing led to another and soon he had added a long list of magicians' devices to his output.

Just about everything used in the way of stage deception is included in Mr. Hackman's manufacturing repertoire. Punch and Judy figures play a prominent part. He cuts them out of wood—eyes, ears nose and mouth and all. Then he walks across his second-story backroom to a cabinet filled with every color and shade of paint. Here they get their resplendent colors and are then turned over to Mr. Hackman's silent partner—Mrs. Hackman—who fits them out with clothing.

Entertains Kids.

While Mr. Hackman has always made a specialty of Punch and Judy figures, you will find in his collection a devil with moving jaw and flashing and smoke-emitting eyes, an anarchist with flaming red hair, a hangman, an assortment of colored babies, singing birds, a man-eating whale and a panting, wheezing alligator. In a cabinet on the other side of this second-story backroom is a collection of plug hats, dice, false-bottom boxes, magical flowers and trick watches.

He presents no mean figure on the stage with his floating voice and his box of tricks. He can make a daffodil grow in a man's vestpocket, pull live rabbits out of his ear and make his watch sing like an oriole. He can pick money out of the air, play a banjo where there is none and pull the American flag from under his thumbnail.

Most of Mr. Hackman's exhibitions—and he has given several hundred of them—have been for the benefit of children living in his neighborhood. Every week he announces the day and time of a party and the children from all the nearby streets flock to see the show.

Great Metropolis Has Had Many Nicknames

London is probably the leader in names, as in many other things. Some of its names had a vogue for a while, then, with the passing of time, dropped out of use. Such a nickname was the "City of Masts," which referred to the great armories of commerce that came and went from its shores. With the advent of the steamship this name has gone the way of others before it. "The City of Smoke" and "The City of Fog" are nicknames for London that seem destined to survive for a while. In these names it disputes our own Pittsburgh. It also challenges Boston's claim to being the "Hub of the Universe"; and when O. Henry has made New York famous as "Bagdad of the Subway," British writers have dubbed London the "Modern Babylon."

Other writers have given it other names, but it remained for an Irish poet to give it the name it loves the best. This is "Eternal London," which has been current since Thomas Moore wrote "Go where you will, Eternal London haunts you still." A Scottish poet gave it the name that it loves the least. This is "The City of Dreadful Nights," which had its origin in the name James Thompson gave to a poem on London night life.

British statesmen have dubbed it "The Metropolis of the Empire," while others have called it the "Imperial City." Lloyd George referred to it as the "Heart of the Empire." It has also been known as the "City of Palaces" and "The City of Poets."

Birds in East Indies Have Elaborate Homes

But few of our birds go to as much trouble building their nests as the mound birds of the East Indies. They are only about as big as an ordinary barnyard fowl, but they build a mound taller than the tallest man and sometimes fifteen yards round.

The birds work hard until this huge pile is reared, when the hen bird lays her large red eggs in the heap and the heat hatches them.

The hammer-headed stork of Africa builds what amounts to a three-roomed tenement, made of enormous sticks fixed between the branches of a tree. Any ordinary boy could creep into the lowest compartment, says London Tit-Bits. From this a passage slopes up to another flat decorated with bright pebbles and bleached bones. Above this is the nursery, the walls of which are lined with mud to keep out drafts.

A curious nest is the one the swiftlet builds in Borneo and which is known to commerce as the edible nest of the Chinese gourmet. The bird builds in caverns around the coasts, and nest seekers go with torches and tear them down and export them. It is said that edible nests to the value of £300,000 are imported into China every year. The nest is woven from a secretion the bird produces—hence its food value.

Egyptians Used Bells

Campanologists attribute the origin of bells to the Egyptians, who are credited with having used percussion instruments to announce the sacred fetes of Osiris. In China bells were known 3,000 years before the birth of Christ, says the Detroit News.

Two Arabs, who journeyed through China in the Ninth century, have handed down an interesting account of the great popular justice bells, then in use throughout the whole of that country.

In each town there was a bell of a large size fixed to the wall above the head of the prince or governor, and to it was attached a rope a mile or so in length and laid so temptingly along the main thoroughfare that the humblest sufferer from injustice seldom hesitated to tug at it without fear. As soon as the bell sounded the governor sent for the petitioner and "serious business, craving quick dispatch" met with instant and honest recognition.

Gardening Among Words

Will our British academy ever be given the power vested in the Academie Francaise of admitting foreign words into the language?

The academie has now accepted "athlete," "alpenstock" and "football" as genuine "English" words, but, although we use a number of French words in ordinary talk and writing, there is no central authority which can decide on the absorption of these words into the language, says London Tit-Bits.

One of our games, court tennis, is full of French words, like grille, dedans tambour, and so forth. A word continually used by us is "coup," and there are many others. Why not separate the sheep from the goats officially?

The mistress pressed her for a reason.

"'Tis scared of the master I am, he's that quare in his head."

"Why, Mary, what on earth do you mean?"

"Well, ma'am, 'twas yisterday that I found him on his knees. He was perrin' here and perrin' there, and I says to him, 'Kin I hilp ye, sor?' An' thin he says to me, he says: 'Tis, I'm [illegible] the East Wind. Kin ye see thim anywhere?' An' so, ma'am, ye'll plaze be givin' me my wages, for I'm scared to stay."—Everybody's Magazine.

MANY LIVES SAVED BY U. S. LIBERALITY

Established Public Health Measures in Serbia.

New York.—American methods of fighting disease and promoting public health through sanitary measures and public education are rapidly being adopted throughout Serbia as a result of the reconstruction work done there since the war by the Serbian Child Welfare Association of America," said William J. Doherty, executive secretary of the association.

"The health work done by the association in Serbia was one of the most important, if not the most important phase of activities which the generosity of the American people made possible. The need of Serbia, like other European allies, for aid was almost as urgent immediately following the war as during the course of the conflict itself. Specters of disease, epidemics, exposure and starvation stalked through the devastated regions of Serbia.

Nurses' School Established.

"Had America, with its resources of money and trained personnel, failed to respond to Serbia's appeal the postwar losses of life in that country [illegible] the period of conflict.

"Among the outstanding results of the health work instituted by the Serbian Child Welfare Association of America were the establishment of the first training school for nurses in Serbia; the organization of a health workers' school for short intensive training of nurses and other health workers; the publication of a textbook on hygiene, home and community sanitation, for which King Alexander himself wrote an introduction and assisted in placing in public schools throughout Serbia, and the formation of domestic science schools, which offered Serbian young women short courses in housekeeping, cooking, sewing, home sanitation and personal hygiene.

Three Gifts Made.

"Soon after beginning work in Serbia the association enlisted the interest of the Serbian ministry of health, the medical association and various Serbian public health and welfare groups in establishing the training school. An initial gift of 350,000 dinars (a dinar normally is equal to 19.3 cents) was made for the purpose by the association. Shortly afterward the Serbian Red Cross contributed 500,000 dinars and the association raised its gift to meet this sum.

"Important as was the work of the association in saving the lives and providing for 25,000 orphans and in helping to rebuild more than 300 schoolhouses in Serbia, the health work which the organization did will, in the opinion of American experts, make an even more lasting impress on the future of this little Balkan country, which suffered worse, in proportion to its size and population, than any other country during the war."

Claims Jap Has Found Food to Add to Stature

Tokyo.—Victor Heiser, director of the Far East Rockefeller foundation, said that Doctor Saike of the Japanese Institute of Nutrition is about to startle the medical world with a discovery of a fish powder to increase human stature.

"He has proved it in animals, and is now demonstrating it in humans," Mr. Heiser said. "I am convinced it is genuine and practical."

The American, who is consulting the authorities regarding establishing a research hospital financed by the foundation, says the anti-American agitation does not affect the plan.

"National questions do not concern us," Mr. Heiser declared. "We are now working in 37 countries, showing that we have no preference for races or nations."

The main work of the foundation in Japan will be to demonstrate that the annual death rate is unnecessary, due solely to the unbalanced diet and the lack of the use of preventatives.

Where the card has spent the interval postal officials do not know.

Memorabilia of Famous Novelist Given Museum

All the memorabilia of George Sand, which were inherited by the granddaughter of the great novelist, Aurore Sand, have been bequeathed to the Carnavalet museum.

Letters, manuscripts of novels and numerous articles of intrinsic worth all are now on view in a part of the building called the "Musee George Sand," and the many admirers of George Sand, most of whom apparently haven't read her voluminous romances, are tripping out to the Carnavalet.

However, the article most characteristic of the author of "La Petite Fadette," a big black cigar, isn't in the collection, much to the disappointment of the visitors and also of the museum attendants, who are constantly being asked "whereabouts the cigars are."

Aurore Sand has come into the public eye not only because of her gift to the Carnavalet but also because she has just written a novel, "Encarnacion." The first book to appear under her own name, it has been received with considerable approval by the critics, who do not hesitate to say Aurore has inherited some of her grandmother's genius.—New York Tribune.

Webster's Life Policy Had Odd Restrictions

An interesting relic recently shown was the life insurance policy issued September 20, 1844, to Daniel Webster. It was for $5,000, which was considered a large sum in those days, and carried a premium of $293. The policy contains certain restrictive clauses. If Daniel wanted to visit a large city, Washington included, or journey west of the Mississippi river, he had to get permission of the company and pay extra.

But Webster did not go into the wilds west of the Mississippi. He never had much use for that country, anyhow. The idea of the insurance company in imposing the limitations was that smallpox was likely to be epidemic in the large cities, while the Indians were the hazard of the West.

Webster was also advised that if he died in a duel, was hanged or killed in a raid upon any city or Indian tribe there would be no money for the widow.—Detroit News.

Whence Corn Came

It is generally believed that corn is a native of America. All evidence points to its having been cultivated by the Indians long before the discovery of this continent by Columbus, who is said to have introduced corn into Spain. However, representations resembling corn plants found in an ancient Chinese book have led to the belief that corn may have been indigenous to Asia also. It is also claimed that grains of corn were found in ancient ruins at Athens. But if corn had ever been known to the Asiatic and Europeans, it had not been cultivated for many centuries previous to its introduction into Europe by Columbus.

The nature of the "corn" mentioned in the Scriptures is only conjectural. It was probably some kind of small grain. In Europe various kinds of small grain, such as oats, wheat and barley, are called corn, and our corn is there always spoken of as Indian corn or maize. Maize is a corruption of the native name of corn in the West Indies.—Detroit News.

James Howell's Poetry

The value of Howell's faded finery is that it reminds us of that many-colored world of music and idleness, and gallantry and romance, where the great Elizabethan poets had their nurture. Howell is one of the choristers of the days of Shakespeare's youth, when "wild music burdened every bough," when lutes and gitterns hung in every barber's shop for the use of the customers, and when every gentleman could bear his part in a glee or madrigal. The ordinaries of London and the aisles of St. Paul's were frequented by young gallants who wore their fortunes on their backs and stuffed their heads with legends and fantasies. . . . Every noble family maintained its journeyman versifier. If Howell deserves to be remembered as a poet, it is because there were hundreds like him, and because Shakespeare gained the better part of his education not on the benches of an academy, but at the court, and in the tavern, and on the street.—Sir Walter Raleigh.

Presence of Mind

A burglar in Wales, in a place which we cannot pronounce, was undone by finger prints secured under peculiar circumstances. A maid servant was awakened in true movie style by the burglar's flashlight. She said she felt faint and asked for a glass of water which he gave her and finding no valuables took his departure. He was traced by the finger prints on the glass and proved to be a pitman and an old offender.—Scientific American.

Imported Foreign Art

The aggregate value of foreign art importations since 1910, the year following that in which such works upward of twenty years old were permitted free of duty into the country free of duty is estimated at $270,000,000, an average of over $29,000,000 annually. For 1922 art imports from Europe were valued at about $33,000,000.

Mars was booked to get within 34,000,000 miles of the earth on August 23, but so far as known such proximity did not cause the two planets to take any particular notice of each other.

Jealousy Proved Fatal to English Musician

Certainly the most destructive of human emotions is that of jealousy. With the exception of love and war nothing seems to be so provocative to the green-eyed monster, who seems to have the faculty of consuming all those who admit him to their souls, as music. A list of the famous musical jealousies would be interesting. It would run into the hundreds. Opera companies are usually nests of jealousy.

Possibly one of the most famous cases of musical jealousy is that of Henry Cooke, deceased (1672). Cooke was a fighter who gloried in the term of captain. He joined the king's army and fought bravely, it is said, but when the commonwealth came into existence he was obliged to make his living teaching music. Eventually he became gentleman and master of the children when the chapel royal was established again in 1660. There he had as his pupils no less than Purcell, John Blow and Pelham Humphrey.

Humphrey so closely imitated the work of his master that after some time he was able to supplant him in his state position. Captain Cooke flew into a rage of jealousy, and this continued until in his death notice there appeared the significant line, "died of jealousy."

BOYS OF NATION TO MAN MERCHANTMEN

Youths, 18 to 23, Are Offered Sailor Training.

Washington.—The first step in plans to give the United States an American manned merchant marine has been taken by the shipping board under a decision to place boys between the ages of eighteen and twenty-three years on commercial ships' crews. The boys will be able to work their way to officers' berths through an arrangement by the industrial division of the shipping board working in conjunction with its sea service bureau.

Under the plan, detailed instructions of which have been sent to fleet corporation district directors on the Atlantic, Pacific and gulf coasts, two deck boys will replace one ordinary seaman on all the government's merchant vessels. They will receive a thorough training and be given examinations for higher ratings.

The boys, who must be American born or naturalized, will be paid $25 a month and receive the customary subsistence. As an ordinary seaman's pay averages $47.50 a month, the total crew pay roll will be increased only $2.50 a month, the total cost for all ships with the plan in full operation being estimated at $200,000 a year.

An applicant must be under twenty-three years of age, and while eighteen is fixed as the minimum age requirement, the physical and mental development of boys at that age, the instructions point out, will be considered as a factor in making appointments. Minors will require the consent of their parents or guardians to ship as deck boys.

The sea service bureau has advised masters and officers of the government's merchant vessels that on them will be imposed the duty of training the deck boys to become ordinary and able seamen and later, as they develop ability and experience, to receive higher ratings.

The youths will be required to serve six months before being rated as ordinary seamen and a year before being eligible for able seamen ratings through tests prepared by the United States steamboat inspection service.

SEASON'S CLOSE NEAR.

The baseball season in Charleroi will soon be a thing of the past insofar as this year is concerned, as the football enthusiasts are "rarin' and eager to go." The football season will be formally opened here the latter part of the month of September.

There is little doubt about the success of the football season here, inasmuch as the people will rally around the players and those promoting it, but the passing strange thing to us as we review the baseball season here lack of patronage. Except in the case of the Homestead Grays and the testimonial for the ex-leaguers, baseball contests on the local diamond have been for the most part sparsely attended.

It cannot be that the people do not love the game. Then what has been the trouble? The team that is representing the borough will average up pretty well with other semi-professional clubs, and with the present lineup is getting better every week. The boys are all good fellows, who give of their best all of the time; the men conducting the baseball association backing the team here are among the best in town, and yet the people don't attend the games. Just why, is beyond our ken.

We are glad to see the interest that is displayed every year in football, but we would like to see greater interest in baseball. Both sports are worthy of the patronage of the people

THE LONDON AGREEMENT.

After prolonged effort, under threat of disastrous consequences to follow failure, the London conference seems to have had a happy ending, with the purification of troubled Europe in sight. A real spirit of conciliation and concession seems to have prevailed and finally to have brought long-desired results. Apparently it has been possible to hold in check the old passions born of the war and to reach a working agreement which all could sign with at least a considerable degree of satisfaction. At any rate Premier MeDonald, at the conclusion of the conference, confidently announced: "We are now offering the first really negotiated agreement since the war. Every party here represented is morally bound to do its best to carry it out, because it is not the result of an ultimatum, and we have tried to meet each other as far as the public opinion of the various countries would allow us."

Moral bonds do not always bind, but there is more lasting promise in an agreement reached through compromise and concession than in a treaty dictated by the sword. From all accounts the former was the aim of the Allied Premiers, and they met with a view to accomplish the work of enlightened statesmen rather than as conquerors assembled to lay down the law to the conquered. The pacific settlement is due largely to Premier MacDonald, the peacemaker, but even more to Premier Herriot who had to grapple with the task of overcoming stubborn opposition in France. The world at large will earnestly hope that the agreement will accomplish all that is expected of it, but the reflecting will realize that much depends on a genuine willingness to live up to it by all parties.

Henry Ford says that as soon as people leave tea, coffee, tobacco and alcohol alone they will live to the ripe age of 125, but there is record of some tough ones who didn't and yet lived a century. Apart from the quality of Mr. Ford's advice in this particular instance, some of his recent utterances tempt the conclusion that he is heading rapidly toward the conviction that the richest man is necessarily the wisest man.

Acording to Charles A. Windle, "a widely known economist of Chicago," four years of prohibition have cost the people of the United States $10,016,600,000, a sum greater than the British war debt. These figures cover the indirect as well as the direct costs, and inevitably considerable guesswork enters into the estimates of the former, but no doubt the certain costs are staggering enough.

It is reported that the British will point to an expected eclipse of the moon as a rebuke to the uprising Sudanese. That will at least be more humane than shooting them into space.

BILL BOOSTER SAYS

"WHENEVER I HEAR A PERSON KNOCKING OUR COUNTRY, I CAN ALWAYS SILENCE HIM BY ASKING HIM WHY SO MANY NATIVES OF OTHER COUNTRIES ARE IMMIGRATING HERE. IT'S WORTH THINKING OVER!"

ent points in this country are believed to have been brought down from the north during the ice ages, and, reasoning on this assumption, the conclusion of a paper recently read at Toronto is that there must be at least one rich diamond deposit somewhere in British America. That may be, but to locate it will be no small matter and it is likely that for some time to come Canada will have to be content with its rank as second among the gold-producing countries of the world.

In connection with the story, now denied, that 47 gold spoons were missing after the American advertisers dined at the Elysee Palace in Paris, it is related that a German officer, when asked to define the war aims of the Allies, ventured the opinion that the French were fighting to defend their native land, the English as a sporting proposition, and the Americans for souvenirs.

Henry Ford's latest theory is that coffee, tea and tobacco will be legislated out of existence, not by law, but by common sense. Apparently Mr. Ford lacks similar faith in the long-run common sense of the people where another weakness is concerned, for not long since he went so far as to institute the "sniffing system" of spotting and stopping the use of alcohol among his workers.

A German professor has discovered a new disease and given it a characteristically ponderous name, which has been translated "onlychilditis." But only the name is new. The disposition of the pampered only child toward wilfulness, selfishness and supersensitiveness has been noted for generations.

According to Mr. Darrow, "life is an unpleasant interruption of a peaceful nothingness" and "consciousness is evolved in men at great expense and trouble and is a total loss." Why, then, is he so determined that legal process shall not be permitted to relieve Leopold and Loeb of the great burden of existence?

George McClosky, veteran clerk of the Brooklyn County Court, explains a recent marked decline in the burglaries in his city as follows: "A stick-up man gets as high as twenty years. A bootlegger seldom gets more than thirty days. There's more profit and less risk in booze, and that's what the gang is doing nowadays."

Even a great writer who has won wide recognition may not come fully into his kingdom, in a pecuniary sense, until after his death. The manuscript of Joseph Conrad's "Victory" has been sold for $8100 and one evening's sales of other scripts of his brought $110,000.

An aged and none too intelligent cobbler of the State of Delaware has formally put John W. Davis on notice as follows: "I am a life-long Democrat, but being a Methodist and Probitionist, I could not consider voting for a man who has been president of a bar association."

The negro colony of Harlem has secured the Republican nomination of a dentist of their race to represent the 21st district in Congress, the first time a negro has won a Congressional nomination in New York City.

Solved the Problem.

"I was almost distracted with stomach trouble, gas and colic attacks, and did not know what to do. I had tried everything I heard of, and the doctor's medicine did not help me. A friend told me about [illegible] derful Remedy, and it has solved the problem, as I now can eat anything and have no distress." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. At all druggists.

Discovery of Oxygen

The American Chemical society says that Joseph Priestley, an Englishman who came to America in 1749, discovered not only oxygen, but also ammonia, hydrogen chloride, sulphur dioxide and nitrous oxide. In the course of his various manipulations of vapors he isolated chlorine, which is now extensively used in the arts and in the manufacture of military gases and as a cure for colds.

"Kansas" and "Arkansas"

There seems to be no connection between the words "Kansas" and "Arkansas," although both words are derived from the names of Indian tribes. "Kansas" is from the name of a tribe who called themselves "Kanze." The word is said to refer to the wind. "Arkansas" was the name of a tribe of Indians found within the borders of the state by the first settlers.

Didn't Wear Out Welcome

"I called at the Munniswells' today," said Snobb. "Stylish people they are; house splendidly furnished; received me very graciously and asked me to call again." "They did?" inquired Gum. Earliest Manual Training

The earliest official recognition of manual training as given in Finland, were Uno Cygnaeus organized a plan for such work in primary schools in 1858, and where such instruction was made compulsory for certain pupils in 1866. Sweden soon after recognized the importance of such training and gave an impetus to the movement.

Winged Rod of Mercury

The curious-shaped wand that the god Mercury is always pictured as carrying is called a caduceus. It is a winged rod with serpents twisted about it. Early Canadian Industry

The first clock factory in Canada was established in the village of Cote des Neiges, about two miles west of Montreal. The machinery was driven by water power, supplied by a small stream fed by springs at the western base of Mount Royal. The proprietors of the factory were J. and W. Twiss.

Heart on Wrong Side; Restored to Position

Philadelphia.—Her heart pushed nearly over to the right side and her left lung crumpled below the shoulder, Miss Hasel Richardson, twenty-six years old, of Washington went to the Philadelphia General hospital three months ago to die.

Recently Miss Richardson walked out of the hospital with heart and lung in their normal positions. If she will not exert herself she may live for many years, physicians say.

Air escaping through a puncture in the left lung filled the area about the heart. It pushed the cardiac organ down and toward the right side, until it finally attained a position behind the eighth rib. Water also pressed against her heart.

Both water and air were drawn off through a small tube inserted through the left side. The pressure relieved, the heart returned to its normal position, and the lung, with the puncture blocked, slowly expanded. Through the lung's deflation the hole in the pulmonary organ probably was permitted to heal by nature's process, it is believed.

Loneliness Kills Bees Ants and Other Bugs

Heidelberg, Germany.—Loneliness will kill bees and other insects quicker than bad food, says Prof. Wilhelm Goetsch, a German entomologist, who passed several years studying the habits of all kinds of bugs. A bee must have companionship or he will die within five days, Professor Goetsch declares, no matter how much honey he may have on hand as food or regardless of how pleasant his surroundings are generally.

Deprive an ant of work and his friends and he also will soon begin to mope and in a day or two he will curl up and pass away very comfortably indeed, leaving the impression behind that he did so intentionally

Sees "Pearly Gates"; Struck Down by Sight

Hoquiam, Wash.—Reports that an intoxicated man was lying in the street a few blocks from police headquarters sent policemen hurrying to the scene late at night, but the man, Ernest Deoer told the officers he had just started home from an evangelist meeting when he saw the pearly gates of heaven opening in the sky and was struck down by the sight. He was perfectly sober, the policemen reported

The Zananna Bible class of the Methodist Episcopal church will hold its regular monthly meeting Friday, August 29, instead of Tuesday, September 2, in the church. All members are requested to be present as an enjoyable time is in store for them.

The regular monthly meeting of the Gleanor class of the First Christian church was held last night at the home of Mrs. Clyde Haggerty of Maple Creek, with 15 members present. The regular routine of business took up the first part of the evening, following which the members indulged in fancy work and music. A dainty luncheon was served by Mrs. Haggerty and Mrs. Herbert Wilkinson, assisting hostess. of Washington street. The next meeting of the Gleanors will be held on the last Tuesday in September, the 30th.

One of the most beautiful weddings that has been held in the Methodist Episcopal church for a number of years was solemnized this morning at 10 o'clock by the pastor, Rev. E. H. Greenlee, witnessed by a large assemblage of relatives and friends, when Miss Mary A. Welch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Welch of 100 Lookout avenue, and Dr. Gordon F. Harrington, local dentist, son of Mrs. Anna Harrington of Bentleyville, were united in marriage. Miss Welch, one of Charleroi's most popular and wellnown girls, wore a gown of ecru lace and large picture hat also of ecru lace, and she carried a large bouquet of butterfly roses. Her bridesmaid, Miss Mary Latchem of Roscoe, appeared in a gown of tan georgette with large leghorn hat to correspond and she carried a bouquet of sweetpeas. Harold Baque of this place, officiated as best man. The auditorium of the church was beautifully decorated with palms and ferns and Miss Wood, teacher of music in the Washington Seminary, played the wedding march. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the Welch home, covers being laid for 40, after which the bride and groom left by automobile for a 10-day wedding trip to Washington, D. C. and other points east. Upon their return to Charleroi, they will take up housekeeping in their new home at 711 Sixth street. Mrs. Harrington has been very active in social circles of Charleroi. She is a graduate of the Charleroi High School and of California Normal, and has been a most successful teacher in the Charleroi Schools. Dr. Harrington, a graduate of Charleroi High School and of the Pittsburgh University, is equally wellknown throughout the vicinity. He has been practicing dentistry in the Stahlman building during the past year. Dr. and Mrs. Harrington have the best wishes of their many friends for much happiness and success.

TRAFFIC COPS MUSN'T TALK TO THE LADIES

Pittsburgh, August 27.—This idea of traffic officers holding up traffic in all directions while they converse with members of the fair sex has got to stop, Superintendent of Police Edward J. Brophy ruled. "Either work or quit," he told his traffic officers.

Brophy said he had many complaints and also noticed himself that policemen hold pink tea conversations or talked over the family troubles with brother lodge members for minutes at a time while traffic continued to pile up on all sides.

"Recently on a trip down town I noticed a patrolman carrying on a conversation with a woman. The traffic was tied up on all sides while the officer, who was all smiles, talked with his lady friend. This must stop at once," Brophy said.

Any further violations of the order will mean suspension of the offending officer, he declared.

INTRODUCING "MISS LOS ANGELES"

Miss Lillian Knight, of Los Angeles, has won the contest, and will represent that city at the coming Atlantic City Bathing Beauty Pageant in September.

PREPARE FOR DEFENSE DAY

The Defense Test committee of Monongahela appointed by Governor Pinchot and the commanding general of the Third Corp Area, at Baltimore recently met and outlined a program to be carried out on September 12, the day set for the Defense Test. Further explanation of the test will be made at later dates.

The civilian committee is composed of H. F. Latimer, chairman C. H. Landefeld, H. B. Simpson, Joseph Hoffman, William McGreagor, John Neuhart and David Harris. The members of the military committee are Lieut. Col. E. W. Hartland, chairman; Majors James E. Gee and Harley Swift; Captains C. O. Deere and Walter Scott, Lieutenants Fred J. Steigman, John S. C. Herron, H. H. Hoover, Arthur Wilson and Carl Swallow.

It would appear that the good-looking pugilist shares with the dashing soldier in the power to attract women, for Norman Selby, popularly known as "Kid McCoy," is held at Los Angeles for the murder of the woman he had intended to make his tenth wife.

COAL TRAFFIC TO INCREASE WITH LOCKS' COMPLETION

Pittsburgh, August 27.—Work is being pushed so rapidly in the construction of the new locks Nos. 7 and 8 on the Monongahela river that they are expected to be completed about the first week in November. The dams will be constructed later, and as rapidly as possible the entire work will be finished to enable traffic to pass up and down through the new locks.

When they are finally completed, the locks will mean much for the development of the Point Marion section of the Monongahela river in lowering the carrying rates of river transportation, and coal traffic on the river is expected to increase greatly.

BABY PEGGY TO BE SEEN HERE

Baby Peggy, the little screen star who is known all over the world because of her remarkable ability as an actress, will be seen at the Coyle Theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday in "Captain January," a screen adaptation of the famous American classic by Laura E. Richards. Supporting her are such stars as Hobart Bosworth and Irene Rich.

"Unguarded Women," the latest celluloid opus from the Paramount organization, which began a three days' run at the Coyle Theatre last night, successfully proves two theories. It offers conclusive evidence that there are men of honor still left in this world of storm and strife: secondly it shows that certain members of the female of the species absolutely need the strong will and protecting arm of an honest, dependable man to guard them against their own innate frivolousness which is ever-ready to plunge them into the sea of disaster.

GREAT PLANS FOR LABOR DAY HERE

"There will be something 'a-doin' every minute," judging by the plans that are being made to observe and celebrate Labor day in Charleroi. Business will be [illegible] suspended, and the occasion will partake of not only a gala day, but it will be, weather permitting, one of the most pleasing and successful of the holidays as they are observed in the United States.

STREET CARS ARE HARMED BY "LIFTS"

The menace of the "free automobile ride" is pointed out in an article by the Pennsylvania Public Service Information committee which shows how public and merchants alike suffer from the practice.

The Committee explains that it is not criticizing the spirit of good fellowship that prompts motorists to offer rides to men waiting at car stops, nor is it criticizing men for accepting these offers. But it does invite attention to the serious consequences the street railway suffers when, say 500 prospective car riders take the "free automobile ride" each day.

It's not only a serious matter financially, the Committee says, but it also upsets the "service" calculation on a route, because a regular street car service cannot be operated successfully without a reasonable complement of passengers each day. Especially in cold weather in this country regular street car service is more essential than ever, because automobiles are not operated then.

Mercury Forced From Ore by Distillation

Probably the largest exposed deposit of cinabar, or quicksilver, ore, is that forming the mountain from which the town of Black Butte, Ore., derives its name. There a vein 400 feet wide has been opened for more than a mile along the mountain at a depth of 1,000 feet below the crest. In Europe the chief mines are at Almaden, in Spain, and at Itria, a town 25 miles from Trieste.

The process of obtaining the mercury is called distillation. After being crushed the ore is subjected to intense heat, 1,200 degrees Fahrenheit. When the ore has attained the temperature of 680 degrees, the mercury is driven off in the form of vapor. This vapor is passed into large wooden or brick chambers called "condensers" which are surrounded by water jackets and other devices designed to reduce the temperature. In these chambers the vapor is condensed, the quicksilver resuming a metallic form and being deposited in fine globules on the walls and floors. These globules, as they increase in size, merge and run out in troughs ready to be marketed. The product is shipped in wrought-iron flasks weighing fourteen pounds each and holding seventy-six and one-half pounds of the metal, for which the dealer contracts at the market price.

Ancient Authors Had Variety of Interests

To prolong the life of man for thousands of years to melt precious stones and pearls and give them desired shape, size and color, to enable a man to fast for six months or more without losing his health and life; to cause new teeth to grow in the place of fallen teeth—such are some of the benefits to mankind aimed at as revealed by an ancient library belonging to Doctor Syed, M. D., Kassim, Jahagirdar, head of the Pasteur hall, Pathargatti, Hyderabad, says the Scientific American.

This library contains rare and valuable ancient books and manuscripts on palmyra leaves, written in almost all the languages of India. Some of them seem to be the works of the hoary Vedic period.

In one book is described a kind of wireless telegraphy in which two stone plates are to be prepared and placed at great distance from each other without any wire connection. It is said that communications can be carried thousands of miles by means of these.

Famous London Well

After being hidden and almost forgotten for hundreds of years, the old well from which Clerkenwell takes its name seems to have been rediscovered and laid bare, London Tit-Bits states.

It was called "Clerks' well" because "the parish clerk of London in remote ages annually performed sacred plays in front of it."

What is believed to be the "Clerks' well" was discovered recently under a shop floor in Farringdon road. It was while workmen were pulling down the building that their spades revealed the well.

In the well are the remains of a leaden suction pump, by which the water, it is said, used to be conveyed to the street outside for the use of priors, nuns, clerks and ordinary folk.

Close to the well a fine piece of Roman wall has been unearthed. So substantial is it that it is to be used as part of the foundations of a new building to be erected on the spot.

Rarest Sea Shell

One of the rarest sea shells in the world is called the "Glory of the Sea." In shape and appearance it suggests an unfolding rosebud. Only twelve to fourteen are represented in collections today. Three specimens of this beautiful mollusk were found in 1838 by a British scientist on a Philippine coral reef. A few weeks later the reef was destroyed by an earthquake.

"Tom Thumb"

Tom Thumb was the professional name of Charles S. Stratton (1838-1883), a famous American dwarf exhibited by P. T. Barnum in America and Europe. When first placed on exhibition (1842), he measured two feet in height, and weighed 16 pounds; in 1863 he had increased to 31 inches, and later to 40 inches.

Influence of Paint

When things are well kept and spic and span the effect on us is somewhat like that of a new suit of clothes. We "take on" our environment and our spirits and initiative are influenced by our surroundings. Paint builds morale because well-painted property expresses happiness and thrift.

No Chance at a Bargain

An Irishman was looking into the window of a chemist's shop. He noticed that all the drugs and medicines were being sold at a reduced price. "Sure," said he as he turned away, "it's just my luck. I am never ill when I ought to be."—Pearson's Weekly.

Pronunciation Changed

The early spelling of the word (now spelled colonel)—coronel—followed the Spanish and early French, accounting for the "r" sound. The present pronunciation, "kurnel," became established about 1600, before which time the second "o" was given a value.

Fish Made Easy Prey

In Madagascar, where primitive methods of procuring food are still practiced by the natives, fishermen gather their catch by first paralyzing their prey with a bait made from the leaves of a peculiar tree.

New Version

Asked by her Sunday school teacher to give the Bible verse for that day's lesson, a little western girl replied: "Go ye into all the world and spread the gossip to all the people."—Boston Transcript.
